Population Served
The CCBT-Child Division primarily serves clients up to age 18 years with problems related to inattention, impulsivity, hyperactivity, anxiety, trauma, depression, and/or disruptive behavior. Because our clinic is not designed to assess or treat youth with pervasive developmental delays or thought disorders, youth with these problems are accepted only on a case-by-case basis.

Cost
The CCBT Psycho-educational Testing Program uses a sliding fee scale based on household income and size. No third party insurance is accepted. Please call (808) 956-9559 for more information or to arrange testing.
What is psycho-educational testing?

Psycho-educational testing is designed to answer questions regarding a child’s learning abilities and educational achievement. It evaluates learning strengths and weaknesses and can identify possible problems a youth may have in academic, emotional, and behavioral functioning.

How would my child benefit from testing?

Testing can be helpful when there is a concern about school functioning and overall academic progress. Some children struggle in typical educational settings and learning about their specific abilities can help to facilitate more effective academic planning and delivery. Essentially, testing provides data about a child’s learning abilities and academic achievement. Testing results will contain information regarding:

- Intelligence and Achievement
- Learning disabilities (such as dyslexia, memory difficulties, and/or reading, writing, and math disabilities)
- Specific educational needs and strategies

Description of evaluation

We offer standard psycho-educational testing which includes intelligence and achievement tests. The testing process involves child and parent interviews and the completion of questionnaires by the child and parent(s). When there are concerns about specific conditions, (e.g., specific learning disabilities, emotional or behavioral challenges), further specialized testing may be conducted.

Testing and evaluation typically involves the following steps:

1. An Initial Consultation

During the initial consultation session we will meet with the parent(s)/guardian(s) and the child to discuss the reason for referral and review the testing process. Appropriate tests will be determined based on the concerns raised.

2. Testing Sessions

Testing sessions will be conducted at the CCBT. Testing will be completed over the course of one to three days depending on the age of the child and the referral concerns.

3. Feedback Session

Following completion of all testing sessions, we will meet with the parents(s)/guardians(s) to discuss the findings and provide a written report.

Referral Process

Our referral process is simple and requires only a few steps. First, please call us by phone at (808) 956-9559 to let us know you are interested in psycho-educational testing for your child. A CCBT staff member will return your call and review our procedures and costs. Materials will then be sent to you to be completed and returned upon your first scheduled appointment.

Center for Cognitive Behavior Therapy (CCBT-Child Division)

The Center for Cognitive Behavior Therapy is a research and training clinic staffed by clinical psychologists, postdoctoral fellows, and doctoral students in clinical psychology at the University of Hawai‘i.
